LAND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

York University recognizes that many Indigenous Nations have longstanding relationships with the territories upon which York University campuses are located that precede the establishment of York University. York University acknowledges its presence on the traditional territory of many Indigenous Nations. The area known as Tkaronto has been care taken by the Anishinabek Nation, the Haudenosaunee Confederacy, and the Huron-Wendat. It is now home to many First Nation, Inuit and Métis communities. We acknowledge the current treaty holders, the Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation. This territory is subject of the Dish with One Spoon Wampum Belt Covenant, an agreement to peaceably share and care for the Great Lakes region.

Overview and Practicum

Overview

The Bachelor of Education (BEd) at York University is designed to be a place where theory and practice are deeply linked and where foundations and methods courses and school and community experiences speak to one another. It consists of 10 full courses (60 credits) delivered over a period of four semesters, and includes required courses, a community placement, practicum placements, and elective courses. The program is structured around four broad themes – one for each semester:

- Orientation to the profession in community
- Learners
- Classroom and Curriculum
- Schooling, Society and Research.

Practicum Experiences

You will begin your practicum experience in the first year with both a community placement and a school-based placement. These complementary placements support the development of community-based practice, reflecting our Faculty's foundational belief in the relationship between school and community. These placements will allow you time to observe, relate, reflect and deconstruct your understandings of teaching and learning with a focus on links between theory and practice. In year one you will spend one day per week in each placement. In the second year you will undertake a school-based placement with both weekly days in placement and teaching block experiences. We are confident that these experiences will help you become exemplary teachers who are engaged in the facilitation of learning for Ontario students.
